10 AMERICAN SAFETY INDEMNITY
11 COMPANY, et al.,

12 Defendants.

Case No. 2:10-cv-00764-MMD-GWF

ORDER

(Def.'s Motion for Reconsideration
– dkt. no. 62)

13
14 Before the Court is Defendant American Safety Indemnity Company's ("ASIC")
15 Motion for Reconsideration. (Dkt. no. 62.) For the reasons described below, the Motion
16 is denied.

17 The relevant factual history is recounted in this Court's December 26, 2012, Order
18 regarding the parties' motions for full and partial summary judgment. (Dkt. no. 57.) The 19 Court denied ASIC's Motion for Summary Judgment and partially granted Plaintiff
20 Jaynes Corporation's ("Jaynes") Motion for Partial Summary Judgment. The Court held 21 that ASIC had, and continues to have, a duty to defend Jaynes under the Additional 22 Insured Endorsement ("AIE") provision of its insurance policies with the subcontractor, 23 Stewart & Sundell Concrete ("S&S"). Thus, the Court declared that ASIC has a duty to 24 defend Jaynes in the underlying state court construction defect litigation. The Court also 25 determined that ASIC must compensate Jaynes' reasonable costs incurred in its defense
26 of the underlying action, with certain exceptions described in the Order. (See id. at 23.)

27 ASIC now moves under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 60(b) for the Court to 28 reconsider its decision that ASIC owes Jaynes a duty to defend. ASIC asks the Court to

1 reconsider its determination regarding (1) the meaning of the “ongoing operations”
 2 provision in the at-issue AIE; and (2) whether ASIC owed Jaynes a duty to defend under 3 the “projects on file” provision in the at-issue contract.

4 I. DISCUSSION

5 A. Legal Standard

6 Although not mentioned in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, motions for 7 reconsideration may be brought under Rules 59(e) and 60(b). Rule 59(e) provides that 8 any motion to alter or amend a judgment shall be filed no later than 28 days after entry
 9 of the judgment. The Ninth Circuit has held that a Rule 59(e) motion for reconsideration 10 should not be granted “absent highly unusual circumstances, unless the district court is 11 presented with newly discovered evidence, committed clear error, or if there is an 12 intervening change in the controlling law.” Marlyn Nutraceuticals, Inc. v. Mucos Pharma
 13 GmbH & Co., 571 F.3d 873, 880 (9th Cir. 2009) (quoting 389 Orange Street Partners v.
 14 Arnold, 179 F.3d 656, 665 (9th Cir. 1999)).

15 Under Rule 60(b), a court may relieve a party from a final judgment, order or 16 proceeding only in the following circumstances: (1) mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or 17 excusable neglect; (2) newly discovered evidence; (3) fraud; (4) the judgment is void; (5)
 18 the judgment has been satisfied; or (6) any other reason justifying relief from the 19 judgment. Stewart v. Dupnik, 243 F.3d 549, 549 (9th Cir. 2000); see also De Saracho v.
 20 Custom Food Mach., Inc., 206 F.3d 874, 880 (9th Cir. 2000) (noting that the district 21 court’s denial of a Rule 60(b) motion is reviewed for an abuse of discretion).

22 A motion for reconsideration must set forth the following: (1) some valid reason
 23 why the court should revisit its prior order; and (2) facts or law of a “strongly convincing
 24 nature” in support of reversing the prior decision. Frasure v. United States, 256
 25 F.Supp.2d 1180, 1183 (D. Nev. 2003). On the other hand, a motion for reconsideration
 26 is properly denied when the movant fails to establish any reason justifying relief.
 27 Backlund v. Barnhart, 778 F.2d 1386, 1388 (9th Cir. 1985) (holding that a district court
 28 properly denied a motion for reconsideration in which the plaintiff presented no

1 arguments that were not already raised in his original motion)). Motions for 2 reconsideration are not “the proper vehicles for rehashing old arguments,” Resolution
 3 Trust Corp. v. Holmes, 846 F. Supp. 1310, 1316 (S.D. Tex. 1994) (footnotes omitted), 4 and are not “intended to give an unhappy litigant one additional chance to sway the 5 judge.” Durkin v. Taylor, 444 F. Supp. 879, 889 (E.D. Va. 1977).

6

7 B. The Court’s Determination Regarding the “Ongoing Operations” Provision

8 The Court held that the “arising out of” and “ongoing operations” provisions in the 9 at-issue contract covered claims for damage arising out of work performed both during 10 the ongoing operations as well as claims for damage that occurred after the operation
 11 but which was caused by ongoing operations. Accordingly, the work performed by 12 Jaynes was covered by the insurance contract. (Dkt. no. 57 at 15-18.)

13 ASIC argues that the Court must reconsider its decision due to a change in 14 intervening and controlling case law. In its Order, the Court relied on the reasoning in an 15 unpublished Ninth Circuit decision, Tri-Star Tri-Star Theme Builders, Inc. v. OneBeacon
 16 Insurance Co., 426 F. App’x 506, 510-512 (9th Cir. 2011), in interpreting the meaning of 17 the on-going operations clause at issue here.¹ ASIC contends that the Arizona Court of 18 Appeal decision, Colorado Casualty Ins. Co. v. Safety Control Co., Inc., 288 P.3d 764
 19 (Ariz. 2012) constitutes intervening, controlling case law. ASIC argues that had the Court
 20 followed the Colorado Casualty court’s reasoning, its determination would have differed.

21 There are several problems with ASIC’s argument. First, Colorado Casualty is not
 22 “intervening” authority. It was issued on September 11, 2012, while this Court’s Order
 23 was issued on December 26, 2012. See Merritt v. Mackey, 932 F.2d 1317, 1320-21 (9th
 24 Cir. 1991). Although the decision was issued after the parties’ motions were fully briefed,

25

26 ¹In citing Tri-Star, the Court noted “[p]ursuant to 9th Circuit Rule 36-3, Tri-Star is 27 not precedent, but may be cited by this Court. See also FRAP 32.1. The Court
 28 accordingly cites Tri-Star not for its precedential value, but because it finds the 9th
 Circuit’s reasoning on a near-identical contract term persuasive.” (Dkt. no. 57 at 15, fn.
 8.)

1 ASIC should have notified the Court about the Colorado Casualty decision through a
 2 supplemental filing. Reconsideration is not a mechanism for parties to make new 3 arguments that could reasonably have been raised in their original briefs. See Kona
 4 Enters. v. Estate of Bishop, 229 F.3d 887, 890 (9th Cir. 2000). Second, Colorado
 5 Casualty is not “controlling” authority, because as an Arizona Court of Appeal decision it
 6 is not binding upon this Court. See Rich v. TASER Int'l, Inc., 2:09-CV-2450, 2013 WL
 7 129326, at *3 (D. Nev. Jan. 9, 2013).

8 Finally, the Colorado Casualty court’s reasoning is not persuasive. There, the 9 court held that “ongoing operations” meant work under the subcontract that was still “in 10 progress.” 288 P.3d at 772-73. This Court, referencing Tri-Star, concluded that a similar 11 “ongoing operations” provision covered claims for damage that occurred after the 12 operation but was caused by ongoing operations. (Dkt. no. 57 at 15.) The Court
 13 explained at length why it found the reasoning in Tri-Star and McMillin Construction
 14 Services, L.P. v. Arch Specialty Insurance Co., No. 10CV2592, 2012 WL 243321, at *2-3
 15 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 25, 2012), persuasive on this point. The Court acknowledged that other
 16 courts have reached the same conclusion reached in Colorado Casualty, and explained
 17 why the reasoning in Tri-Star and McMillin should control. The Colorado Casualty
 18 decision does not change this determination.

19 C. The Court’s Determination Regarding the “Projects on File” Provision

20 ASIC next asks the Court to reconsider its holding regarding the “projects on file”
 21 provision. Under the at-issue contract, in order for ASIC to provide coverage for work
 22 performed on a given project, the project must be “on file” with ASIC. After considering 23 the facts presented and the parties’ arguments, the Court concluded that there was at 24 least a factual dispute regarding whether the Sun City Anthem (“SCA”) project (the 25 project involved in the underlying state court litigation) was “on file” with ASIC. (Dkt. no.
 26 57 at 13.) The Court held that this factual dispute triggered ASIC’s duty to defend. ASIC
 27 contends that “[a] factual dispute regarding whether an entity is an insured should mean 28 . . . Jaynes failed to meet its burden of first proving it was a party to the contract.” (Dkt.

1 no. 62 at 9.) With this argument, ASIC misunderstands the foundational principles of 2 insurance law, which hold that an “insurer must defend any action that asserts a claim
3 potentially seeking damages within the coverage of the policy.” Maryland Casualty Co.
4 v. Nationwide Ins. Co., 65 Cal. App. 4th 21, 32 (1998) (quoting Montrose Chemical Corp.
5 v. Super. Ct., 6 Cal. 4th 287, 295 n.3 (1993)); see also Buss v. Sup. Court, 16 Cal. 4th
6 35, 46 n.10 (1997) (holding that the duty to defend is dependent on “at least potential
7 coverage.”). As noted in the Court’s Order (dkt. no. 57 at 10), “the duty to defend may 8 exist even where coverage is in doubt and ultimately does not develop” Kazi v.
9 State Farm Fire and Cas. Co., 24 Cal. 4th 871, 879 (2001); see also Quan v. Truck Ins.
10 Exch., 67 Cal. App. 4th 583 (1998). “[F]or an insurer, the existence of a duty to defend 11 turns not upon the ultimate adjudication of coverage under its policy of insurance, but 12 upon those facts known by the insurer at the inception of a third party lawsuit.”
13 Montrose, 4 Cal. 4th at 295 (internal citations and quotations omitted).

14 Because the Court determined that the potential for coverage existed here, it was 15 not clear error to hold that ASIC had a duty to defend Jaynes under the at-issue
16 insurance contract.

17 II. CONCLUSION

18 The Court notes that the parties made several arguments and cited to several 19 cases not discussed above. The Court has reviewed these arguments and cases and 20 determines that they do not warrant discussion as they do not affect the outcome of the 21 Motion.

22 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Defendant’s Motion for Reconsideration (dkt. no.
23 62) is DENIED.

24 DATED THIS 17th day of May 2013.
